Designing Shared Governance Appropriate to UMUC’s Mission and Vision

Starting the Conversation

President Javier Miyares
“At one point in our research, we were inclined to drop references to shared governance altogether and to argue for avoiding all use of the phrase. We were troubled by the vagueness of the concept, the lack of even rough agreement as to what it meant, and inclinations to use the phrase in sloganeering efforts of various kinds.”

Overarching Principles to Guide the Management of UMUC Going Forward

UMUC will be managed as a best-in-class employer
• All employees – faculty and staff alike – will be treated with respect;
• All employees – faculty and staff alike – will have input into the criteria used for their evaluations

UMUC will be managed with transparency
• President and senior leadership team will have ongoing communication with entire UMUC community

All UMUC employees will have the opportunity to provide feedback on the overall direction of the university
Shared Governance at UMUC: Our Assumptions

• Must recognize that USM Board of Regents approved a Faculty Advisory Council for UMUC, rather than a traditional faculty senate

• Must accommodate UMUC’s need for agility and flexibility to compete in fast-paced online market

• Must maintain the integrity of UMUC's leadership structure, with strategic decision making the responsibility of the president and final academic accountability resting with the provost
• Must allow for proprietary (competitively sensitive) information to remain confidential

• Academic governance must be led by the university’s core faculty (program chairs and 12-month collegiates)

• The Adjunct Faculty Association will represent stateside contingent faculty via “Meet & Confer”

Disaggregating Shared Governance

Who has stewardship of the curriculum and its delivery, and how is it exercised?

In what other ways should the core faculty be involved in providing advice and feedback?

- Two Questions to Guide Your Discussions –
Stewardship of the Curriculum

Who is responsible for the design and assessment of student learning experiences, including:

• Designing a coherent student learning experience?
• Defining program/course learning outcomes?
• Selecting appropriate learning resources?
• Designing specific courses?
• Designing appropriate assessments of student learning?
• Vetting and evaluating contingent faculty?

Our assumption:
This should all be the responsibility of the core faculty.
Questions Related to Core Faculty: Stateside 12-Month Collegiates

What is the core faculty’s understanding of its role?

In advancing beyond outmoded faculty/administrator dichotomies, how do we define roles and responsibilities for collegiates and administrators in ways that foster coordination, cooperation, and productivity?

- Vice deans & program chairs
- Regents’ policy envisions academic leadership being part of shared governance body

How should the stewardship of the curriculum be structured?

How can contingent faculty provide valuable input and feedback on their courses?
Should we streamline titles?

Three categories:

• Should we reserve collegiate for core (stateside 12-month) faculty only.
• What would be appropriate titles for overseas full-time traveling faculty?
• Adjuncts
Universities must accept that “fundamental change” is coming and that “simply trying to do harder what you’ve been doing all along, is a formula for failure.”

“UMUC is enormously well prepared to take on what is an enormous challenge,” and “the organization has many strong ingredients of what is needed.”

— USM Regent Norman Augustine, former CEO, Lockheed Martin
Varieties of Input

1. Afternoon sessions with deans
2. Focus groups
3. Website comment form
Developing the Draft Model

1. Team of core faculty and deans
2. Submit by end of July
3. UMUC model created
4. Final draft shared with faculty for input
5. Present to BOR in September
